Description:

The antique map of Scotland titled "Scotia Regnum" was published in Amsterdam in the 1640s by the renowned mapmaker Jan Jansson. The map is a detailed representation of the region, including Scotland and the surrounding islands, with an inset map of the Orkney Islands in the upper right corner.

The map is notable for its detailed depiction of the topography of Scotland, including major cities and towns, rivers, and bodies of water. The cartography is highly detailed and precise, with carefully drawn coastlines and intricate details of the interior of the country.

In addition to its geographical features, the map also includes a depiction of the Royal Coat of Arms to the right of the main map. In the lower right corner is an elaborate title cartouche, which includes the map's title in Latin.

The map was published around the time of the English Civil War, and, as such, provides valuable insight into the political and cultural climate of the time. It is an important historical document and a valuable addition to any collection of antique maps of Scotland.
