Description:

Interesting map of North America, published shortly after the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo.

The map shows the southern border between the United States and Mexico following the Gila River, a feature which suggests that it pre-dates the Gadsden Purchase in 1853.

The configuration of the west is consistent with the knowledge of the west in France prior to the discovery of Gold, most notably the retention of Lake "Youta". A number of American forts appear in the Pacific Northwest and Upper Missouri River regions, including

- Fort Vancouver (established in the 1820s)
- Fort Astoria (1811)
- Fort Colville (1825-1846)
- Fort Okanagan (1811)
- Fort Fontanic (?)
- Fort Umqua (1832)
