Description:

Nova Hispania et Nova Galicia by Willem Janszoon Blaeu, published in Amsterdam around 1636, is a stunning cartographic depiction of Mexico during that time. This gorgeous map extends from just north of Mazatlan to Acapulco and from Tehuacan to the Sierra Madres, encompassing Mexico City, Puebla (Angelorum Civitas), Colima, Campostella, Purificatio, and Mechoacan as prominent cities of the era.

Noteworthy for its ornate decorative elements, Blaeu's map features a fabulous armorial title cartouche, sailing ships, a compass rose, and a smaller cartouche. These decorative elements add aesthetic appeal and enhance the visual presentation of the map.

Nova Hispania et Nova Galicia holds significant importance for collectors of Mexican maps. Its detail, ornamental features, and historical accuracy make it an essential addition to any map collection focused on Mexico. The map offers a glimpse into the geography, cities, and regions of Mexico during the 17th century, providing valuable insights into the historical context and development of the area.

The presence of the Notarum Explnatio section on the map indicates the inclusion of notable places, such as Escalpucoleo, Gucytitlan, Circa Mexico, Xiquicpico, Veicilapa, Ocellotepec, Mimiapa, Circa Puri, Caltoca, Chiconantla, Thecheistlan, Tapaleapan, Itapalapa, Mexicalcingo, Catlavaca, Nichquique, Chalcontengo, Circa Colimam, Coquimatlan, Tecoftitlan, Tampuchi, and Aguacapan. These labels contribute to a more comprehensive understanding of the specific locations and regions depicted on the map.
