Description:

A Massive Chart of the Southern Pacific Ocean -- Including Sailing Tracks from an 1852 Voyage

Large sea chart of the South Pacific Ocean, extending from the Philippines and Australia in the west to the Coastline of South America, published by James Imray & Son in London and engraved by James Stevenson.

The present chart includes pencil notes for a voyage which rounded Cape Horn in December 1852 (likely headed for California) and returned via the same route in August 1853.

Imray's general chart of the South Pacific, etc. was one of the primary general navigational sea charts of the region used in the middle part of the 19th Century.

Detailed Condition:

Glue-like substance on surface of map. Minor toning and some dampstaining. Linen backed sailing chart.
