Description:

Early edition of Colton's map of the Southwestern United States.

Unlike in the prior edition, Nevada is no longer truncated, so that Las Vegas is now in Nevada. Utah is now in its final configuration. The counties no longer extend across Arizona and New Mexico. While at first blush, the map appears similar to Johnson's map of the same period, this map is vastly more detailed. There are many mining districts named and outlined in Southern California. A number of early wagon roads are shown, with US Forts each marked with American Flags. The routes surveyed by Emory, Simpson, Albert & Peck, Fremont, Gunnison, and others are shown, with years relevant to the survey. The Emigrant's Road, Fredonyers Trail and Pass, Pony Express and U.S. Mail Routes are shown. Excellent topographical detail, includes elevations. Many Indian Tribes and other interesting places are noted, along with annotations.
