Description:

Detailed map of the Caspian Sea Region, from An Historical Account of the British Trade Over the Caspian Sea . . ., published in London by Jonas Hanaway, Merchant.

The map gives the details of several expeditions through the regions in the mid 18th Century.

The map shows a part of the Silk Route, the historical overland trade route connecting Europe with Asia. The map is filled with notes, identify the lands of "Roving Turkumans," "Mountains in which Persians pretend are Gold Mines," and "Plains of Sultan Meydan." Many small kingdoms are noted, along with Cossack lands and other details.
