Description:

Scarce example of Colton's map of the Southwest, with extensive updates after 1866 in Arizona.

Nevada is truncated at the bottom, so that Las Vegas is in Arizona. Utah is wider than its final configuration. Arizona with only 4 counties. While at first blush, the map appears similar to Johnson's map of the same period, this map is vastly more detailed. There are many mining districts named and outlined in Southern California. A number of early wagon roads are shown, with US Forts each marked with American Flags. The routes surveyed by Emory, Simpson, Albert & Peck, Fremont, Gunnison, and others are shown, with years relevant to the survey. The Emigrant's Road, Fredonyers Trail and Pass, Pony Express and U.S. Mail Routes are shown.

In this edition of the map, a number of new mining districts and details are added in Yavapai County, Arizona Territory. The course of the Gila and its Tributaries are significantly revised and Fort McDowell is added (established in 1867), Fort Whipple, and the Wickenburg, Weaver, Yavapai and Agua Fria Mining Districts. Fort Bowie is also added, as is Camp Riggs and Fort Goodwin (1864-1871).

Excellent topographical detail, includes elevations. Many Indian Tribes and other interesting places are noted, along with annotations. Includes decorative border. .
