Description:

Scarce edition of Colton's double-page map of the Northwest, showing an early appearance of Wyoming Territory and Montana Territory.

Wyoming includes 5 counties. Montana is shown with only 11 counties, Idaho includes only 9 counties. Very few counties are shown east of the Cascades in Washington and Oregon. Yellowstone is not yet shown.

This map is one of the best regional maps of the period, showing remarkable Indian detail, early forts, explorer's routes, mining information and a wonderful look at the evolving geographical knowledge of the region. Following the end of the Civil War, this region was explored again in earnest, and with substantial new information being added north of the Wind River Range. Many early Indian Reservations noted. Gold regions are noted. The detail in British Columbia is also excellent for the period.
