Description:

Nice example of this scarce map of the American Southeast published by Samuel Augustus Mitchell in Philadelphia in 1841.

The map covers North Carolina, South Carolina, and Georgia in impressive detail, with the counties named and hand-colored.

The map includes an inset of the Charleston region titled "Vicinity of Charleston". Above which is a listing of the principal stage routes in North Carolina, South Carolina, and Georgia. In the upper-left corner is a listing of the steam boat routes in those states.

The key lists the capitals of the states; county towns; stage roads; common roads; canals; rail roads; etc.

This map was an update of the earlier edition, also engraved by J.H. Young, which can be seen here.

Detailed Condition:
folding map with original covers. Overall toned and some offsetting.
