Description:

Rare Jansson map of Herefordshire, published in the middle of the 17th century and showing Herefordshire.

The map shows the county in fine detail. Towns and cities are shown, and the map is centered on Hereford. Fine Dutch-style cartouches appear in the upper right and lower right of the map, with the lower cartouche remaining blank.

Hereford, located in the Welsh Borders, was one of the smaller English ceremonial counties. Its geography is dominated by the hills to the southwest and the River Wye, both visible on the map.

This map originally appeared in Jansson's atlas of English counties, one of the books in his Atlas Major. This volume was succeeded by an atlas of Scottish counties.

Detailed Condition:

Original hand-color, in outline. Later hand-coloring to decorative elements.
