Description:

Judaea seu Terra Sancta Quae Hebraeorum sive Israelitarum in suas duodecim Tribus divisa secretis ab invicem Regnis Iuda et Israel expressis insuper sex ultimi temporis ejusdem Terrae Provinciis . . . is a finely engraved map of the Holy Land by Peter Schenk, created in Amsterdam in 1695.

The map notably depicts the division of the Holy Land into the Twelve Tribes of Israel. On the west side of the Jordan River, the map illustrates the tribes of Judah, Benjamin, Simeon, Dan, Ephraim, half of Manasseh, Issachar, Zebulun, Naphtali, and Asher. Meanwhile, on the east side of the river, it shows the tribes of Reuben, Gad, and the other half of Manasseh.

The map also separates and depicts the kingdoms of Judah and Israel, providing a comprehensive picture of the political landscape of the region during biblical times.

Furthermore, it highlights the six provinces of the same land during its later periods, adding another layer of historical insight.

One of the distinctive features of the map is the finely engraved allegorical cartouche that adds artistic value to this historical document. The cartouche, like the map itself, is reflective of the craftsmanship and
