Description:

Fascinating image of Native Americans conducting a meeting, from De Bry's Voyages.

At center, a Native American man presides over a meeting with his back to the viewer and his arms extended at his sides. A group of Native American men sit on a bench surrounding him while passing around a shell from which the men are drinking; two of the men are vomiting. In the right foreground, three women are boiling and mixing a liquid concoction.

Several Europeans with guns and spears talk amongst themselves in the left foreground.
