Description:

Detailed map of the coastline from Wilmington and Cape Fear to Cape Canaveral. The map is noteworthy for the location of a number of early forts and place names along the coast, early appearance of Counties South Carolina and the appearance of roads and distances. The map is sheet XI from Zatta's Atlas of the American Colonies, which is often referred to as the Italian edition of John Mitchell's map, upon which it is based. Unlike the Mitchell, the individual sheets in Zatta's atlas stand alone as separate maps. A marvelous map of the region during the Revolutionary War and one of the few large format maps of the region which can still be obtained at a reasonable price. Portinaro & Knirsch pl. 153.
