Description:

Rare separately issued map of America, not intended to be issued in any atlas although occasionally appearing in Doncker's Zee-Atlas. The map is an amalgam of sources. The figures derive from the rare and desirable 1614 Van den Keere, but w/fewer town illustrations. The California model is after Luke Foxe, but the contiguous coast of the mainland is inadvertently engraved as a river. Hudson's Bay & the Great Lakes are derived from Blaeu. New Amsterdam is shown, but no evidence of English settlements. The map is based upon Dutch sources, despite the availability of more contemporary French material. Two Virginia figures are among the 8 shown. Expertly mended tear & minor repairs at centerfold. A striking example. Burden 356, McLaughlin 24.
