Description:

An important early map of the Northeast coast of America, centered on Cape Cod and Long Island. Based upon the 1614 manuscript map of Dutch fur trader Adriaen Block. One of the earliest to name Neu Amsterdam and Manhattan. Cape Cod is improved from Block's map and is no longer an island. The source of the Delaware and the Hudson are separated. The map includes deer, foxes, bears, egrets, rabbits, cranes and turkeys, along with Indian dugout canoes and sailing ships. The Mohawk village in the upper right is drawn from DeBry and White. A stunning wide margin copy of one of the most influential maps of the Northeast during the 17th Century. Burden 241.
