Description:

Superb example of the first state of this large map of the East Coast, from south of Long Island to Isle Royale. Extends to West of the Hudson, showing Fort Hunter on the Mohoch River. Excellent detail throughout New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont and the Province de Terre Main, as well as throughout the Canadian regions of the map. Hundreds of place names, soundings, rivers, islands, shoals, banks, ports, bays, etc. The coastal detail and detail along the rivers is truly remarkable. Includes a very large inset of Boston Harbor and Vicinity, again with soundings, islands, and at least 30 placenames and a cartouche and compass rose. Striking large cartouche, compass rose, rhumb lines and other decorative features. The true first state of this important Depot De La Marine Chart, distinguishable by the lack of rhumb lines in the Boston inset. Overall an excellent example, with a 3/4 inch right margin, otherwise full margins, with an exceptionally dark plate strike. One of the best general New England coastal charts of the French & Indian War period, which is now quite scarce on the market.
