Description:

Detailed early map of Texas, immediately prior to the start of the Civil War. The state is dissected by the Santa Fe Route, with early railroads radiating from Houston. The western part of the state is dominated by 4 huge counties, El Paso, Presidio, Bexar Territory and Young Territory. Large inset of Galveston Bay Nice early example of the map with a dark impression of the decorative border. A light spot in the inset and a bit of softness to the fold, but generally a nice example.
