Description:

Scarce early map of Florida, one year before it was admitted to the Union. Includes plans of Pensacola, Tallahassee and the Harbor at St. Augustine. From one of the leading German map makers of the period. Includes distance tables between a number of major and minor cities. Shows early roads, towns, rivers, lakes, islands and other features. Mosquito County extends from Lake George to Lake Macacao and only Monroe, Hillsboro and Dade Counties are shown in the southern 2/3rds of the state, with Dade appearing far northwest of its current position. A bit of faint offsetting, but a nice example of this scarce map.
