Description:

One of the most famous and recognizable illustrated content table, from a large Mortier Atlas. Four elaborate allegorical scenes are shown, including Atlas holding the World aloft and an illustration of a woman beside a celestial globe, with pointer and compass, along with two winged gods in the heavens. At the bottom, an finely engraved library scene is shown, including a large globe, atlas and map. The pasted down contents page in the middle lists 134 maps and would appear to be from a large edition of Mortier's Atlas Nouveau. A fine old color example of this highly sought after table of maps. Margins a bit toned, but a nice example in glorious old color.
