Description:

Rare separately published French chart of the region from Nova Scotia to Florida, with large inset maps of Florida, New York Harbor, Charleston and the Delaware Bay.

The map was apparently used either for contemporary navigation or a survey off the mid-Atlantic coastline, as there are pencil notes and triangulations shown between the Delaware Bay, the Chesapeake and the region just west of Bermuda, executed by a skilled hand. The map is extremely detailed, including soundings, rhumb lines, and many coastal features. The lighthouses along the Eastern Seaboard are noted in yellow. Includes a small stamp from the original map and chart seller, in Marseille.

Robiquet's American coastal charts rarely appear on the market.

Detailed Condition:

A few marginal tears, one just entering image on left and a few marginal pencil notes, but generally a fine example.
