Description:

Striking example of this decorative map of the British Isles, with spectacular large format cartouche, coat of arms and portait of Queen Anne and an allegorical representation of Europe resting on a globe. The first state of the map, with an unusually dark crisp impression, from Homann's Atlas Novus Terrarum. A bit of 18th Century manuscript on the map in the British Channel and near the Silly Islands. Some additoinal manuscript in the blank upper right margin, near the cartouche. A very nice example of this rare early edition, predating the Homann priviedge.
