Description:

Scare early example of Mitchell's pocket map of North America, which was also issued in Mitchell's New American Atlas in 1831.

Russian Possessions and a large 54 40 or fight border with the Russian Possessions dominate the map, a serious political statement for the period. The region of the Northwest bounded by Upper California and Russian Possessions is still Missouri Territory, and contains the best information from Lewis & Clark and the Hunt & Stuart expedition for Astoria, although the Oregon Trail is not yet shown. Excellent detail in the Rocky Mountains and Texas, which is shown as Intendency of San Luis Potosi. Galveston, Loredon, San Antonio, Mier, Revilla and Vicente appear on the Rio Grande. Notes of the Wako Indians, Cumanches Indians and Curancaways are also present in Texas. The US/Russia Border is settled by the Convention of April 1824. Many Indian Tribes throughout the West. A number of long mythical rivers in Upper California flow from the Great Basin to the Pacific. Double wide Arkansas Territory and large Northwest Territory.
