Description:

A nice full color example of Munster's map of Africa, from an early French edition of Munster's Cosmographia.

Munster's map of Africa is the first map of the African Continent. It is richly illustrated with vignettes showing a crown and scepter for various kingdoms, as well as an elephant, birds and a Monoculi (a Cyclops or one-eyed man), one of the earliest printed illustrations of this mythical creature. The map depicts numerous Kingdoms, including Hamarich, Prester John's homeland. The map is based in part upon Ptolemy, but also includes modern Portuguese and Arabic information.
