Description:

A detailed and well engraved Double Hemisphere map of the World, showing the results of the explorations of the late 18th Century, including Cook, Clarke and Gore, with notes and tracks on the various explorers' routes. Hawaii is shown, the NW Coast of America shows good progress. Van Dieman's Land is an Island and most of Australia's Coast is now known, although Eastern New Guinea is still incomplete. No sign of the Antarctic Coastline, although notes from Cook indicate the probability of land. Minor stain along the fold, else a very nice example.
