Striking large format map of Russia, extending from the Baltic and Black Seas to Grande Tartarie and the Grande Desert ou Desert De Karkkathay, published by Hubert Jaillot.

This map of Russia provides a highly detailed picture of European Russia and part of Central Asia, based upon the geographical compilations and work of Nicolas Sanson which remained unpublished at the time of his death. Jaillot conceived in 1674 of the re-issue of Sanson's major work (published and unpublished) in an enlarged format. The maps were issued as early as 1674 and were later jointly issued by Sanson and Mortier in Amsterdam.
