Description:

Decorative double hemisphere map of the World, intended to illustrate the successes of the Dutch East India and Dutch West India Companies throughout the world.

Shows an incomplete Australia and New Zealand, along with California as an Island and a badly mis-projected Japan. The west coast of America extends due west toward Asia, one of the predominating theories of the 17th and early 18th Centuries. Two decorative sailing ships, several Lions and other embellishments.

A finely engraved map from Chatelain's monumental 7 volume Atlas Historique, one of the most famous and prolific works of the early 18th Century.
