Description:

Large format map of 18th century India, published by D'Anville.

This map draws from numerous sources, including Ptolemy, Turkish and Indian geographies, and Jesuit surveys, specifically the work of Bouchet in 1719 and Boudier in 1734. Reflecting the state of knowledge of this area at mid-century, the map shows excellent detail of Southern India and coastlines, but a conspicuous absence of place names for the interior north.

Insets include the environs of Goa and a wonderfully detailed depiction of the entrance to the Hugli River.

Detailed Condition:

4 sheet map, joined.
