Description:

A good example of De Wit's well regarded map of the Americas and Pacific. Includes California as an Island, an early depiction of the Great Lakes (not present in Visscher's edition of the map), non-existence of the Island of California and misprojected South America. This first state of the map predates the information in the NW and Oceania. The map predates La Salle's information on the interior of North America, but includes excellent detail in Canada and the East Coast of North America, noting the Dutch Possessions, the Iroquois regions, N. Anglia, New Amsterdam, the Chesapeake, Plymouth, and many Indian Place names. The first state of the map. This example has several repaired tears just entering the printed image and the upper margin and neatline restored. Several other restorations in the image, but generally a very presentable example in old . color, which has been refreshed. Normally a $3500.00 map. McLaughlin 49.
