Description:

Nice example of the enlarged version of William Turnbull's map of the decisive battles of the Mexican War, ending with the US conquest of Mexico City.

The map shows the troop movements and positions south of Mexico City, in route to the battles around Mexico City which end with the siege of the City and peace treaty of the following year.

The map tracks the movements of the troops through San Angel, Churubusco, Chapultepec, Mexico City. Statistics at upper left show number of troops involved and men killed, wounded, and missing at each battle.

Detailed Condition:

Laid on linen. Some minor soiling.
