Description:

Early state of Du Val's scarce map of America, being the first "complete" state of the map, with manuscript additions along the Gulf Coast and Great Lakes.

Du Val's map of America was first issued in 1655, in the second edition of his Cartes Geographiques. Between 1655 and 1687, the map went through at least 12 recorded examples. Both the 1st and 2nd states of the map are essentially "incomplete" states of the map, distinguishable by the lack of nomenclature in California, the Great Lakes and elsewhere.

For the first time in this 1664 edition of the map, Du Val adds significant detail to the map, including the many place names in California and off its coast, the names of the 5 Great Lakes, the names of the Oceans (Mer de Californie, Mer de Canada, etc.), place names in Texas and along the Gulf Coast, and the names of a number of East Coast cities, including Charlesfort, Jamestown, London, Bas (Boston?) and Christina. A number of additional Indian Tribes are also named. There are also extensive notes and annotations throughout the present map which are not included in the earlier state.

A fine example of this unrecorded early edition of Du Val's excellent map of America.
