Description:

Two fascinating charts of the Hawaiian Islands, illustrating the charting of the islands before and after La Perouse's voyage. Despite the large scale of the map, La Perouse sailed though the islands within a matter of days, preventing a detailed charting of all coastlines. The islands are closer together, owing to a differing interpretation of distances, as discussed in Fitzpatrick p.26. A fine example of one of the best 18th Century maps of Hawaii.
