Description:

Fine separately issued chart of the coast of Long Island (centered on the Hamptons), published by the United States Coast survey in 1857.

The chart includes several coastal recognition views. Extends from Moriches Bay to Gardiner's Bay, with excellent detail.

Between 1851 and 1857, the Island was mapped by the Coast Survey in 3 sections, the last two of which appeared in 1857. While in theory the 3 can be joined as a single map, they were issued separately and we have never seen the 3 sections offered together as a single set.

Detailed Condition:

Separately published on thick paper. A few minor tears, repaired on verso.
