Description:

Rare separately issued chart of "Upper San Francisco Bay," published by the United States Coast Survey in 1862.

The most northerly point on the map is Pt. Avisadero, just north of Candlestick Point and extending south to San Jose. The chart provides a rough outline of the shoreline, with some internal details, especially along the shoreline in the southern part of the map. Early place names include Aviso, Long Point, Ravenswood, Mayhew's Landing, Mowery's Landing, Redwood City, Belmont, Marsh Point, Guano Island, Pt. San Mateo, Pt. San Bruno, Sierra Pt., Pt. Avisadero, Thompson's Landing, Eden's Landing, Allen's Landing, Union City, and Johnson's Landing.

The chart is substantially similar to the chart which appeared in the US Coast Survey's official report, but lacks the credit in the lower right corner, referencing "Lith of C. Knickerbocker, Albany, N.Y."

These separately issued USCS charts are extremely rare, this being the first example of this chart we have seen on the market.

Detailed Condition:

Several repaired tears along the top and bottom, with some restoration at the bottom left, affecting the
