Description:

The earliest obtainable map of North America, preceded only by Paolo Forlani's rare map of North America, published in Venice in 1565.

Until recently, the map Forlani map had been attributed to Bolognino Zaltieri. The Forlani includes many firsts which were repeated in the Porcacchi map, including the first detailed depiction of the Straits of Anian.

The map reflects the second Cartier Voyage and early Spanish explorations in the Southwest, most notably Coronado's expedition. The treatment of the West Coast of North America, Baja California and the
