Description:

Early survey map of Washington Territory, conducted under the supervision of James Tilton, Surveyor General.

The Willamette Meridian from Portland to Puget Sound and the 4th Standard Parallel extending west to Gray's Harbor have been surveyed but much of the rest of the cartographical information is speculative at best. However, Wheat notes that the map is important in showing the Hudson's Bay Company's posts at Fort Okinakane and Fort Colville, along with the location of Lake Chelan, east of the Cascades. The US. Military Road from Ft. Steilacoom to Walla Walla is shown. The road proceeds from Seattle, up the White River, across Naches Pass and down to Fort Walla Walla, by the valley of the Yakama River.

This is the first edition of the map to show the Columbia River route for the Northern Pacific Railroad in the southeast, crossing over an unnamed pass south of Snoqualmie Pass and proceeding down the Yakama River. Curiously, no surveys had been made or were yet contemplated through this region.

Detailed Condition:

Minor loss of neatline at lower left corner. Minor browning along folds.
