Description:

Exceptional old color example of De Wit's general sea chart of the southeastern US, Gulf Coast, Florida and the Caribbean, offered here in an addition published by Renard.

The map is based upon Hessel Gerittsz map of 1631, although it is based more closely on Lootsman's chart of 1661. The map was likely engraved by Romein de Hooghe.

There is a wealth of navigational information including sandbanks and shoals. The chart is a masterpiece of decorative engraving with illustrations of sailing vessels, a compass rose and two elaborate title cartouches (Latin and Dutch), one showing cannibalism.

The map was re-issued by both Renard and by Ottens in the early 18th Century.

This is one of the finest color examples we have ever seen for this map.
