Description:

Finely executed Spanish Sea chart of Florida and the Bahamas, published by the Spanish Hydrographical Survey in 1867.

As noted by the title, the map is a combination of Spanish and foreign sources. The detail in South Florida and the Florida Keys includes nearly a dozen lighthouses. The southwest tip of Florida is a marvelously scrambled archipelago, providing a fascinating depiction of the Everglades. Lago Kee Cho-Bee or Big Water is well delineated.

The mapping of the Bahamas is also quite advanced and includes hundreds of soundings and sailing directions.

A fine example of this scarce chart.
