Description:

Scarce set of charts of Southern British Ports, Harbors, etc., after the efforts of some of Britain's leading scientific figures, including Edmund Halley, John Senex and John Harris.

The present chart was part of a collaboration taken up by John Senex (1678-1740), the Royal Geographer to the King, and John Harris, probably the finest mathematical instrument maker in England during the 1720s, as part of a sea atlas developed by Senex and Harris to compete with Mount & Page's wildly popular English Pilot sea series. It was published in the Atlas Maritimus et commercialis, or A general view of the world... (London: James and John Knapton et al., 1728),
