Description:

Early edition of Bradford's early map of part of Iowa and Wisconsin, with large inset showing all of Iowa Territory and Wisconsin Territory extending to the Canadian Border.

This edition shows very early counties configurations and geographical detail in both Wisconsin and Iowa.

The map would be significantly updated and revised in the 1846 edition, illustrated here: `{{ inventory_detail_link('24448') }}`

Iowa Territory was organized in July 1838 and remained a Territory until 1846. Most of the part of Iowa shown is Indian Lands, with only Dubque, Cook, Musqueti, Louisa, Herny, Des Moines, Lee, and Van Buren Counties shown. Wisconsin also has only a handful of counties, all but Crawford being south of the Wisconsin River. The Lands to the North include New York Indian Lands. Massive Iowa and Brown Counties are shown. Many early forts, rapids, portages, etc. are shown. This is the second edition of the map, with the edition being the first appearance of Iowa on a commercial atlas map. Similarly, Wisconsin
