Scarce folding example of the map of New England from Finley's New American Atlas, published in 1826.

The atlas was a response to the success of Tanner's seminal 1822 New American Atlas, which re-defined the standard for American Commercial Cartography.

The map is hand colored by counties and shows towns, townships, roads, rivers, mountains, lakes, islands, and a host of other details. The key at the lower right shows the populations by county for 1810 and 1820 censuses.

Detailed Condition:

Fold splits with some minor loss and some offsetting.
