Description:

Scarce map the Ottoman and Persian Empires, extending from Asia Minor and the Red Sea to Persia and the Gulf of Ormuz, centered on the Arabian Peninsula.

This map appeared in a later edition of Nicolas De Fer's Atlas ou Recueil de Cartes Geographiques, first published in 1709. The work was essentially a composite atlas, with maps added and updated over the course of the next 30 years. The present example bears the imprint of Guillaume Danet, De Fer's son in law, who took De Fer's printing house following De Fer's death in 1720, along with his brother, Jacques-Francois Danet.

We have located copies of the map dated as early as 1720, so it would appear that the map was not in the earliest editions of De Fer's atlas and may have been prepared as a replacement to a more general map (L'Empire Des Turcs, En Europe, En Asie, et En Afrique . . .), published until 1715.
