Description:

The Only Known Example of Blanchard's Pocket Map of California & Nevada

Rare Pocket Map of California and Nevada, published in Chicago by Rufus Blanchard.

Interesting pocket map of California and Nevada, published during boom times in Nevada, and ongoing development in California financed in large part by the mineral wealth of Nevada. A small strip of Arizona is also shown, filled with mining regions.

The few rail lines are shown, and those proposed, the connection to the East not quite accomplished. A note on the Colorado River notes the "Head of Navigation" near Colville, just west of the Grand Canyon.

Lake Tahoe is called Lake Bigler and the Potosi mines south of Las Vegas are also shown.

Fort Ruby (also known as Camp Ruby) is shown--a fort which operated only from 1862 to 1869, for the purpose of protecting the Pony Express Route during the American Civil War.

Virginia City, Gold Hill, Ragtwn, Dayton, Empire City, Genoa, Sheridan, Wellington and Carson City are all located in Comstock region, but many other Nevada mining districts area also noted, including:

- Sierra District
- Buena Vista District
