Description:

A Rare Texas Railroad Promotional Map

Rare topographical birds eye view style map of Texas showing the lines of the International & Great Northern Railroad.

The map provides a fascinating pictorial representation of Texas cities, towns, and military posts in European fashion, as if built on a hill, while locating the lines of the International & Great Northern Railroad and the Steamship lines into Galveston, along with early roads.

On the verso are the usual timetables and promotional text.

Rumsey dates the map 1878?.

International & Great Northern Railroad

The International - Great Northern Railroad (I&GN) was a railroad that operated in Texas. It was created on September 30, 1873, when the International Railroad and the Houston and Great Northern Railroad merged. The railroad was officially incorporated as the International & Great Northern Railroad Company.

Originally, the I&GN operated 177 miles of track from Hearne to Longview, but at its peak it owned 1,106 miles of track. As the railroad expanded, it reached Rockdale in 1874 and Austin on December 28, 1876. The line extended to San Antonio in 1880 and finally to the US-Mexican border town of Laredo on December 1, 1881.

The I&GN, like other railroads of its time, had many financial troubles and went into receivership on
