Description:

A Highly Sought After Dutch Rarity

Fine example of Pieter Goos's double hemisphere map of the World, one of the most sought after of all Dutch World maps of the 17th Century.

Pieter Goos' sea atlases were among the finest printed at the time, and his general map of the World is of equal quality. The two expertly engraved hemispheres closely follow the work of Visscher and Blaeu. A host of birds are shown flying into a resplendent sun. Beneath, a set of allegorical figures representing the four seasons are shown with various other figures.

One of the most decorative world maps to appear in a Dutch atlas.
