Description:

Finely detailed map of Oregon and Washington, prepared in connection with the US Pacific Railroad Surveys.

From the surveys of Williamson and Abbot, this map covers the region from the Siskoyou Range and Klamath Lakes north to above the Columbia River. Finely engraved with topographical and watershed detail including fine hachure throughout the mountainous area. The Emigrant Road, unexplored regions, various routes of the surveying parties, the historical routes of Fremont and Warner, and the first settlements are identified. The Three Sisters, Mount Hood, Mt. Jefferson, Diamond Peak, John Mule Mountain and more are located .

The map provides a fine overview of the exploration and surveying of this region up to 1855, in connection with the US Government's attempt to locate the most practicable routes for the transcontinental railway.
