Description:

Fine Post-Fire Map of the City of Chicago

A scarce folding lithographed map of Chicago, colored by wards, by one of Chicago's foremost 19th-century map publishers.

The map image is bounded by Fullarton Avenue in the north, Lake Michigan in the east, Crawford Avenue in the west, and Forty-Second in the south.

The map shows considerable detail of the railroads and streets, and names some buildings, including railway stations. Parks are highlighted in green.

Detailed Condition:

Backed with thin archival tissue, stabilizing old folds. Ink graffiti in top margin cleaned. Small ink spot under the title.
