Description:

Fine regional map of India showing the Coromandel Coast.

This map covers the southeastern coast of India from Nagapattinam (Nega-Patnam) north as far as Narsapur and inland as far as Tiruchirappalli and Hyderabad.

Harrison derived this map from the influential French cartographer J. B. B. d'Anville's similar map of 1753, which here has been re-engraved, updated, and translated into English. It offers excellent coverage of the Coromandel Coast of India naming port cities, including Chennai (Madras), Nagappattinam (Negapatam), Puducherry (Pondicherry), Pazhaverkadu (Pulicat), etc. Several important rivers, towns, villages, roads and other topographical features are also noted throughout.

The Coromandel Coast's name is derived from the ancient Chola Dynasty which ruled the region from the 3rd Century BC to the 13th Century AD. The Portuguese settled in the region during the 16th century,
