Description:

Scarce pocket map of California and Nevada, colored by counties.

The map provides a finely detailed treatment of California and Nevada, at a time when California was growing and diversifying and Nevada was becoming one of the most important mining states in the countries.

The map shows the progress of the township surveys throughout the two states. There is excellent topographical detail, along with cities, railroad lines, wagon trails, mining details, etc.

In Nevada, a number of towns have been circled in red, suggesting that an early owner was primarily interested in mining towns in Nevada.

The counties in Southern California are still relatively incomplete, with Imperial, Riverside and Orange County not yet formed.
