Description:

Rare pictorial map of Pasadena by Howard Wookey.

The map includes scenes from around the town and several references to the Rose Parade.

The map itself is filled with whimsical historical vignettes about the town, its inhabitants and historical facts dating back to its Indian heritage.

One of the best Southern California city pictorials from the Golden Age of pictorial maps.

We locate only the Ethel Fair copy in the collection of the Library of Congress and the UCLA copy.

Detailed Condition:

Backed on thin faux mat paper.
