Description:

Rare view of Cleveland, Ohio, based upon an original painting by Orlando V. Schubert, published in Cleveland

This rare lithographic view of Cleveland includes a series of local images and a larger view from Lake Erie.

In the center is an image of the industrial heart of Cleveland, taken from the Columbus Street Hill. The Columbus Street Bridge appears in the foreground, crossing onto what is now the Ox Bow Bend, an area developed as the center of Cleveland in the 1830s.

The two main views are surrounded by smaller views of:

- Central Post Office
- Court House
- Water Works Reservoir
- Water Works Tower
- Two views of the Park
- Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry monument

Rarity

The view is extremely rare. We locate no other examples in OCLC. Reps lists 2 examples, but dates the map to 1874.
